NEW YORK, May 21.—[Special.]—A man was thrown over the side of a boat resulting in a terrible accident, which resulted in the loss of five lives. Ham Winton, a well known colored boatman, partly loaded his barge with grain at Leipers landing about three miles above here this morning and dropped down to Mr. William Russell's landing, one and a half miles east of here, where he finished his load of grain. He took Mr. William Russell, his daughter, Mrs. Samuel P.
Jackson and her little daughter Annie, aged eight years, and Andrew Hall, a white tenant of Mr. Russell, also as passengers and started for London.
When about a mile east of Leipers the boat suddenly began to sink. Mr. Russell, who is advanced in years, made a heroic effort to save Mrs. Jackson but without avail. She and Mr. Hall, who had also grasped her, sank to rise no more. Three negro boat hands reached the shore and came to the rescue of Mr.
Russell who was completely exhausted and at the point of drowning. Ham Winton, who was a large muscular man and an expert swimmer grasped little Annie Jackson and made a noble effort to save her, but they went down together with the little girl's arms tightly clasped around his neck. Mack Rigs, a negro boat hand who could not swim, was also drowned. Diligent efforts have been made to recover the bodies, but without success.
Jackson's hat and a basket, found about half a mile below the sunken boat, are the only traces of the lost ones that have been discovered. The search will be continued tonight.

THE FLIGHT OF MARTIN IRONS.
A Mob of Strikers Visits His House But He Is Not In.

SEBASTIA, Mo., May 21.—J. H. Delay, of Little Rock, a member of District Assembly No. 101, Knights of Labor, is in this city for the purpose of investigating charges made by several of the strikers that he had been incorrectly charged with having been improperly dismissed. He will check up the books to morrow and if there has been any crooked transaction they will be brought to light.
Martin Irons, it is claimed, had a narrow escape from a mob of strikers last night or early this morning. The men are very bitter toward him, and it is asserted that they visited his residence for the purpose of warning him to leave the city. He must have received and looking that he would be called upon, as he passed the night at the house of a friend and boarded a southern train for Kansas and Texas train this morning for parts unknown.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.
A Decline in the Number of Failures in the Country.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Business failures occurring throughout the country during the last week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., number for the United States, 147; Canada, 25; total, 162; against 179 last week and 182 the week previous. Business casualties seem to be steadily declining in number throughout the country.

Here Most in Court.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Recorder Smythe this morning had a full docket of cases, and by Her Most's counsel to certain cases of the indictment against his client, but finally overruled the demurrer. Most was then arraigned pleaded not guilty. Wednesday next was set as the day for his trial.

Parsons Not in Florida.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 21.—Careful inquiry as to the alleged presence of Anarchist in this state has disclosed nothing to indicate that he is here. The report was probably due to a misunderstanding of a few days ago based on the report by the chief of police of Parsons's portrait.

Heavy Rains in North Carolina.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 21.—Heavy freshets have occurred throughout upper Carolina. The Tide river stands thirty-six feet above low water mark, and is still rising. Crops on the river are in peril. The loss is beyond estimate. Considerable damage done to railroads and crops in the northern and western parts of the state.

Indicting the Anarchists.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Indictment for conspiracy to murder and incite to riot were formally returned this evening by the grand jury against August Spies, Sam Fielden and A. B. Parsons, anarchists.

archistic pamphlets on the streets, was today fined $15.

Will Likely Go to Sing Sing.

OPPELKA, Ala., May 21.—[Special.]—It was thought after the conviction of the "Blind Tiger" negroes in the recorder's court, that the county and state would jump them, but the federal court at Montgomery was first with its warrant. Dupuy United States Marshal, Jeter has them in Montgomery now, and it is more probable that Austin Phillips, Sam Harrington and John Sledge will be sent to Sing Sing. Charles Singley, a white boy, for being ingrowing around Opelika, was carried down as a witness in the case, and it is thought this trial will develop the names of other parties who had a hand in the business.

Building in Opelika.

OPPELKA, Ala., May 21.—[Special.]—Many new and handsome two story brick stores will be built on Chambers and South Railroad streets during the summer. Mr. J. C. Condon is now building a very elegant residence at Chambers street similar in design to one that graces Peachtree in Atlanta. While Mr. William Kyle, a commercial traveler and a resident of Opelika, has selected a very desirable location and is building a two story mansard roof brick residence on Auburn street. In fact, our present prospects are better now than for years and Opelika will be a space with the times.

The Pope's Blessing.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The Rev. Byrnes, sec-

THE CONGAREE FLOODED.

A Terrible Disaster From Water in Columbia.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 21.—[Special.]—The freshet is terrific. It is growing worse and worse every hour. The Congaree river, as it dashes past Columbia, has assumed the proportions of a raging sea. The water has reached a higher point than since 1852. The whole area of ground near the penitentiary is submerged. The strip of land upon which the city waterworks, the water tower and the reservoir stood has been washed away, and all is a wreck. The machinery and buildings are undermined. The city will be seriously embarrassed for a water supply. Mayor Rhett is very despondent, and declares that he knows not what to do to avoid a water famine. The situation is serious.
The water has almost touched the dam. The labor of one year is ruined.
The damage is exceedingly great. Thousands of visitors have thronged the banks of the river today to witness the terrible spectacle.
The stream dashed along furiously bearing houses, trees, bridges. The water has almost touched the floor of the bridge. The railways entering the city have suffered severely in the loss of bridges and trestles. Traffic is almost suspended on the Greenwood road. It will be several weeks before the damage can be repaired, and the passenger trains can run regularly. All the plantations below Columbia are ruined. The cotton and rice growing crops cannot now be estimated, but is certainly very great. At a late hour tonight the river was stationary.

EIGHT INCHES RAINFALL.

Heavy Damages Done to Railroads and Crops in North Carolina.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 21.—The rain storm which commenced at this place Tuesday morning closed last night. Total rainfall was eight inches.
Break in the Air-Line road, between Charlotte and Atlanta has been repaired, and trains today resume travel.
Three breaks occurred on the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta road, but they were repaired today, and only a slight delay was caused in the running of trains. The Richmond and Danville line suffered severely. The bridge between Greensboro and Coddle Creek being washed away, a train over the bridge, 100 feet long over the York river, was completely wrecked.
A stoppage of travel. The break at Coddle Creek has been repaired and the train will be effected at York river on Monday next, at which time travel on this road will be resumed. The Western line has been washed away, and the road is completely destroyed. The destruction to the crops is immense, and no estimate can be made of the loss inflicted on the farming community.

The Fire Insurance Men.

The Southeastern Tariff association convened in daily session yesterday morning for the fourth time. Mr. Clarence Knowles, president, was in the chair.
Mr. Fleming, newly elected secretary, was present. The association adopted a series of resolutions returning thanks to Mr. Peters, the late secretary, which was approved and entered on the journal.
A motion directing the treasurer to pay Mr. Peters three months salary from July 1st next. The president appointed the following committee: Major Livingston, James Whitman, Thomas Eggleston, John G. Whitmore, F. P. Prieoleau, W. P. Pattillo, of Atlanta, Robt. E. Cox, of Alabama, J. B. Ezell, of South Carolina, George W. Dewey, of North Carolina, Wm. W. Carnes, of Virginia, and Low, of Florida. The committee on cotton policies submitted a report accompanied by a form which was adopted. A committee of conference between the cotton and wool companies was appointed. The association then adjourned sine die.

Kathleen Mavourneen.

Quite a large and enthusiastic audience greeted the Kendall company last night in "Kathleen Mavourneen." It is a beautiful Irish melodrama, and the performance was capital.
Mr. Kendall as Terence O'More was capital and quite a favorite with the audience. Miss Lizzie Keill as Kathleen Mavourneen was good and highly applauded. Mr. S. B. McBreath as Billy Butler was very good, and continually kept the audience in a roar of laughter.
Mr. J. H. Cook as Bernard Kavanaugh was up to the standard, while Miss Mary Kate O'Leary was far above the average.
The play was closed with a raffle Irish dance, which was quite a success and received applause.
The company will play Joshua Whitcomb at the matinee this evening, and tonight will be "Married for Money," which will close their engagement as the day for his trial.

The Superior Court.

The case of Frieron vs. Frobell resulted in a verdict of just one-half of what the claimant wanted. A few unimportant cases were disposed of.

Senator Harris's New Speech.

From a Washington Letter.
Considerable has been written lately about Senator Harris of Tennessee, in connection with the Pan Electric investigation, but the best thing that is told about him became current this afternoon. At the house where he boards, on East Capitol street, there is said to be a small girl.
She has reached the mature age of seven years, and part of her education at the public school includes instruction in declamation. She has a natural inclination to declaim, and she has been rapidly she seizes upon the idea that they are confronting a speech. Recently she went into the parlor, as the story goes, and found Senator Harris holding a very animated conversation with two visitors. He was doing the talking, and the child did not remain long. "That evening she automatically her part by saying:
"Senator Harris is learning a new speech."
"What did he say?"
"I heard him today."
"What did he say?"
"I heard him today."
"What did he say?"
"I heard him today."

Powderly's Good Sense.

From the New York Sun.
Mr. Powderly's circular is full of good sense and in nothing is it more sensible than in its causal of practical measures and its contempt of mere talk and talkers. Here are three specimen Powderleys, and two of them are as witty as they are judicious.
"The labor men who never labor."
"We know we have rights without passing resolutions."
"In the hands of men entirely motionless the gun is harmless as the sword." Martin Irons will think that Mr. Powderly is getting personal.

How Beecher and Talmage Meet.

From the Philadelphia Times.
How many eminent men do you know who are natural and unaffected in their private manners? Most of them are troubled by dignity, and fear to let themselves down to commonplace let they should set like ordinary mortals. The two preachers who draw the largest congregations in America are the most unaffected of men in their personal intercourse. I chanced to see them together at the office of a mutual acquaintance who complained a joint issue of their sermons.
"Hello, old fellow," said Beecher; "how are you?"
"First-rate," responded Talmage, grasping the other's hand. "I am feeling better than I have for some time." Then they sat down for a chat and were as jolly as school boys.

Junk Shop Irons.

From the Philadelphia Times.
Martin Irons would rattle around in Pow-derly's place like a terrier laughing in the massive harness of a Percheron draft horse.

If you experience a bad taste in the mouth, salivaceous or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "bilious," and nothing will arouse your liver action and strengthen up your system like Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By druggists.

Dyspepsia comes from Torpid Liver and Constipation. You cannot digest your food well unless your liver and bowels act properly. Brandreth's Pills, taken once or twice at night for a week or so, will regulate the bowels, stimulate the liver and insure a quick and healthful digestion. These Pills are purely vegetable, contain no mineral and are absolutely harmless for old and young.

JUMBO HUNTER.

HE HAS A PERSONAL DIFFICULTY WITH MR. BOBBIRD.

Mr. Bird is arrested on a Warrant Charging Him With the Larceny of a Dog—Places Him Behind the Bars—Bird Arms Himself With a Whip.

Jumbo Hunter, the policeman was struck over the head with a buggy whip yesterday morning by Bob Bird, the pump maker, and this morning both men will appear in police court.
Bird will answer to the charge of disorderly conduct and resisting an officer while Hunter will plead to a plain disorderly.

On Thursday last a man came to Atlanta from "Chambers county and swore out a warrant against Bond charging him with the larceny of a dog valued at twenty five dollars. The warrant was placed in the hands of Detective Bedford and Stearns, and that night Bird was arrested and conducted to police headquarters. Immediately after reaching the prison, Bird sent to Judge Tanner, asking him to let him out on his own recognizance, and so that he could obtain his release. Jumbo Hunter was in charge at the stationhouse when the detective arrived with Bird, and while Bird was waiting for Judge Tanner to come, Hunter wanted to lock him up. Bird objected to being locked up, and asked Hunter to allow him to sit in the office.
Bird then began to use profane language, and was threatened with a whip. Hunter then returned to his place of duty, and Bird was released. During the signing of the bond Bird expressed his great displeasure with Hunter and threatened to cowhide him.

Yesterday morning Hunter was on duty on Marietta street and near the corner of Broad and Augusta roads, when he encountered Bird, who at once accused him about the matter. Bird had a buggy whip in his hand, and Hunter was angry. Bird had threatened to cowhide him, and when he saw Hunter he began to strike him, and when Hunter saw that he was the trouble of the previous night, Hunter said:
"I told you my duty," said Bird.
"I did only my duty," again said Hunter.
Bird then began to use profane language, and Hunter quickly said:
"Well, do it," replied Bird.
"You will have to go to the stationhouse with me," Hunter said.

"You can't take me," answered Bird.
Hunter then started towards Bird, and quickly he saw that Hunter was angry, and at the same time struck him over the head with a whip.
Bird then began to use profane language, and the whip was broken. Hunter found himself unable to handle Bird, and the difficulty between the two men continued until Patrolman Strout and Hinton came up. Bird did not object to accompanying them to police headquarters, and when he was taken to the stationhouse, he was placed in a cage being made against him, but the trouble between him and Bird attracted a great deal of attention, causing a large crowd to congregate, and the case was deemed necessary.

Charged With Assault on Murder.

James Peavy, who has been wanted by the Atlanta police for several weeks, was arrested yesterday morning early by Patrolman Thompson

TODAY witnesses the last "joint."

The "joint discussion" has been short but sweet!

The Augusta News is disposed to defend the treatment General Gordon received in Augusta. Mr. William Moore will find this a very thankless task.

The movement for "primaries" is doing very well, and the people are discovering that it is easy enough to beat the small politicians when they make up their minds to do it.

ACCORDING to the official journal of the order, Mr. Blaine is a Knight of Labor.
This will not help the knights. Mr. Blaine stands in with capital and monopoly, and has no sympathy with the honest toilers of the land.

THE TEXAS press association had a big fight at San Antonio, this week, over an invitation to visit the brewery. The debate was hot and personal. The resolution to visit the brewery was adopted by a vote of 16 to 17.

THE ST. LOUIS Globe Democrat warns the south that her global greatness will attract the ignorant Poles, Bohemians, Hungarians and Russians who are annually dumped on our shores, and then will follow such labor troubles as they have had in the west.
We are not afraid. The genuine American element of this country resides in the south, and it will stand no Chicago capers. It will take care of itself.

AS WILL be seen by letter from Colonel Pryor L. Mynatt, in another column, in response to a petition to him signed by several of our leading business men, which we printed some days ago, he announces himself as a candidate for congress for the fifth congressional district. Colonel Mynatt defines himself with no uncertain sound on the railroad question which was embodied in the petition presented to him. He does not discuss other issues, but says he will during the canvass, and is, also, ready to be heard at length on the discussion of the issue he presents. Colonel Mynatt is an able man, and his race means a lively time for the congressional campaign of the district.

To the Sea Via Hawkinsville.
The proposed narrow gauge railway from Atlanta to Hawkinsville now has a strong backing.

If there are any serious difficulties in the way of building the projected line, they are not now in sight.

The outlook is as bright as could be desired by the most sanguine advocates of the road. The main point, so far as Atlanta is concerned, is to reach the sea. Hawkinsville is the head of navigation on the Ocmulgee, and boats ply between that city and Savannah. The estimated cost of the road will reassure even the doubtful.

In this matter we wedded to no one particular route. If the people of Hawkinsville are determined to hold up their end of this enterprise, in the manner and to the extent indicated by them, Atlanta will join heartily in the work. The projected road will run through a prosperous region of the state, and will be of incalculable benefit to it. If the dwellers along the line show themselves keenly alive to their best interests, the subscription books will fill up rapidly, and the road will be built almost resolved to rush it through with a whoop.

Insinuations Against Gordon.

There is one fact that the people of Georgia should bear in mind during the present campaign, and that is that the personal issues which have been made are all the result of the charges and insinuations injected into the discussion by Mr. Bacon and his supporters. Some of Mr. Bacon's friends are both fair and discreet, but he has a number of partisans who have lost no opportunity to make the most serious charges against General Gordon. Mr. Bacon himself has added to this tendency and fostered this spirit by his own utterances. He seems to have been unfortunate in this respect.
He has the necessary temper to formulate charges and insinuations against his opponent, but not the necessary restraint when he becomes the victim of retaliation.

The charge made against General Gordon to the effect that his resignation from the senate was the result of a bargain and sale, is effective only in creating indignation among the general's friends, and we have no doubt that its employment in the present campaign has not only developed an interest in favor of General Gordon, where none existed before, but has caused a revolution of sentiment among many who were formerly disposed towards Mr. Bacon.

The truth is, the charge is an exploded one. It has already been investigated by the people of the state. They have heard both the charge and General Gordon's explanation, and their verdict, on more than one occasion, has been in the shape of an almost unanimous agreement that the charge is a baseless slander. If Mr. Bacon and his indiscreet partisans had reflected a little—if they had thoroughly understood the temper of the people of Georgia, undoubtedly they would have hesitated before entering upon a course calculated to injure their own cause. Such has been the result—but this is not all. The slanderous charge has been repeated so often during the present campaign, and in so many different shapes, that it is now the sole stock in trade of the opposition to General Gordon, the only argument employed to convince the people of the state that they cannot afford to make General Gordon their governor.

The joint discussions are to come to a close this week, and it is not to be supposed that Mr. Bacon will cease to make the charge and the insinuations which it conveys. Fortunately, however, General Gordon needs no other vindication than that which is supplied by the sense of justice that resides in the breast of every fair-minded Georgian.
Wherever the charge is made, the effect of it will be to make his following stronger.

The Southern Presbyterians.

The southern Presbyterian general assembly is now in session in Augusta, where it was formally organized a quarter of a century ago. This organization grew out of the necessities of the civil war, but the return of peace has not convinced the southern churches up to this time that it is either necessary or desirable to re-unite with the northern churches.

The southern branch of the Presbyterians has grown steadily. It has now 2,700 churches, more than 1,000 ministers and 135,000 communicants. Its territory includes the late confederate states, and Kentucky, besides numerous mission stations.

Among the questions of interest coming before the present assembly may be mentioned the following: An amendment defining and limiting the method of altering the doctrinal symbols of the church; the original jurisdiction of presbyteries, where sessions cannot act; the power of the foreign evangelist; the right of ruling elders to preside as moderators over church courts; the revised Directory of Worship, and the question of the teaching of the standard of the church upon the subject of the origin of Adam's body. The last of these will reopen the famous Columbia Seminary controversy over the evolution theory of the Rev. Dr.
Woodrow. The session will last about ten days, and will be one of more than usual interest.

Line Upon Line.

"The allyed edifice," says the Albany News and Advertiser, "virtually concedes our position on the tariff to be correct in these words: 'It is possible that free trade would give the farmer his tools and his clothes a little cheaper than he gets them now.' Well, that is the conclusion of the whole matter, and an end to be devoutly wished."

Our contemporary gets a good deal of consolation out of a very small dose of concession, but it is welcome to that much. Only a very superficial view of the whole question could lead the News and Advertiser to exclaim that the possibility of farmers getting their tools and clothes a little cheaper is the end of the whole matter. While such a concession is devoutly to be wished, there are other methods of reaching that end without crippling and destroying the industries of the country. One method by which the farmers could procure their tools and clothes a little cheaper, would be to add to their own property, increase their incomes and give them nearer and better markets for their products. Free trade certainly would never accomplish this for the farmers. Free trade might give them an opportunity to buy their tools and clothes a little cheaper than they do now, but, under its operations, they would be less able to buy.

It is possible that free trade would not kill out the industries of the north to any great extent, but it would paralyze the growing industries of the south. The farmers could never escape from the blighting effects of the one-crop system, and their condition would be no better fifty years from now than it is today. It is a curious and instructive fact that the farmers of Great Britain were opposed to free trade when the great contest was made in that country. They understood their own interests much better than the politicians did, and if they could have had their way there would be no free trade in Great Britain today, and this notwithstanding the fact that the conditions in that country are all as favorable for free trade as they ever get to be in this world.
It is true that the south, by force of circumstances, has always been an agricultural region. But the conditions have all changed.
The circumstances are all altered. There is a movement here in the direction of building up the industrial interests of the section, and this tendency we desire to see fostered, not only because it will add to capital and population, but because it will help the farmers. Free trade is a fraud.

The Progress of the Campaign.

In the bitterness the gubernatorial campaign has assumed, General Gordon and his friends have not been the promoters.
General Gordon announced in the outset that he needed no "vindication," and wanted none. He gave notice that he had never fought a defensive fight, and that he would not be put on the defensive in this fight.
His friends approved of the position he took in this, and will stand by him when he sounds the charge, or rest with him when he calls a halt.

It is with Mr. Bacon and his friends whether the campaign shall be fought on its merits or whether it shall be personal and bitter.
It will be noticed that the opponents of General Gordon have abandoned one position after another, and really they seem to get madder the further they fall back. At first, General Gordon "had no right to run," but it is admitted now that he has the right to run. Then he was the "candidate of the Cotton-Power ring," but it is shown that he has united the leaders of both factions of the party in his support, and that charge is dropped. Then it was said that he had been "resigned," and less said is soon said than formerly. Then he was the railroad candidate—but it is found that he is squarely in favor of the railroad commission law as it stands, that Mr. Bacon, besides being a railroad attorney, is evasive on the railroad commission law. Even the little charge that General Gordon had been living in New York was dropped when the public was reminded that Mr. Bacon had been living in Chicago as the attorney of the Pullman company. So the fight was shifted from one point to another, General Gordon rooting his opponents from one position after another.

A shrewd observer writing to General Gordon of the campaign, says: "It is hard to say whether you are to be congratulated most on the enthusiasm of your friends or the folly and rage of your enemies." The inventions at the time of the first trade.

The contest just decided was for the basic line ing for the converter or open heart in which the basic process is carried into effect. The decision in this case, taken in connection with previous decisions, cuts the Bessemer company out of the basic process. The company loses the $275,000 which it paid for the Thomas patent. Mr. Reese believes it was the intention of the Bessemer company to tie up the basic process because they are the only processes which will dephosphorize southern ores. He predicts that with the basic process in use, southern manufacturers will outstrip their northern competitors.

The people will probably bear in mind how the Bacon men of Augusta did their best to hurl General Gordon off the stand. Free speech is a nice thing, and so is fair play.

concentrated to her exchange for his son by one of the court favorites. This boy, so the story goes, became known as the prince imperial.

GRANT AND THE PICKETS.

A New Story Told by the General Himself.

Concerning a Strange Adventure.
From Grant's Memoirs, Second Volume.

After we had secured the opening of a line over which to bring our supplies to the army I made a personal inspection to see the situation of the pickets of the two armies. As I have stated, the pickets were drawn down the center of the

One of the English customs which is being introduced in this country is the custom of ladies to lay wagers on horse races. The wagers are not made on the horses, but on the result of the race. A gentleman writing from Augusta says: A gentleman here told Mr. Moore, editor of the Evening News, today that the outrageous treatment of General Gordon at the opera house when he came here on invitation to address the people, was worth 1,000 votes to him in this county.

A merchant who was in Oglethorpe two weeks ago, and who was there when General Gordon spoke, says: "I have been watching politics for thirty years, but I never saw such a change in the sentiment of a county as is shown in Oglethorpe in the last two weeks. On the third of May it was sold for Bacon, now there is no doubt of its going for Gordon."

THAT EATONSTON MEETING.

Slanders Concerning the Nisbet Family Corrected.

EATONSTON, GA., May 19, 1886.—To Editors of the Constitution and Messenger, Macon, Ga.: We have noticed in your issue of the 18th instant a paragraph concerning the Nisbet family, which we understand, in reference to the misunderstanding.

The excited manner of both Captain Bacon and Colonel Nisbet, during their "spat," created intense excitement in the audience, and some disturbance on the speaker's stand. Each of the underlined being on the outskirts of the crowd, could not hear the words of the gentlemen mentioned above, and as Colonel Nisbet was a relative of the speaker, and an uncle respectively, we naturally became uneasy and excited at the scene, and rushed through the crowd to the speaker's stand, in order that we might hear what was being said by Captain Bacon and Colonel Nisbet, and we did so.

We did say during this confusion that "Captain Bacon had lost his temper on account of showing his anger to the crowd, he showed it to one man," and that "Colonel Nisbet was a relative of the speaker, and an uncle respectively, we naturally became uneasy and excited at the scene, and rushed through the crowd to the speaker's stand, in order that we might hear what was being said by Captain Bacon and Colonel Nisbet, and we did so."

We regret our excitement on this occasion, for we should have remembered that Colonel Nisbet himself was amply able to defend the position which he had taken. We hope that you will publish the above statement in justice to us. Very respectfully, DENNIS B. NISBET, EUGENES A. NISBET.

He passed a very restless day yesterday, and his physicians found it necessary to be near him much of the time. He lost a great quantity of blood, and is consequently very weak. There were faint indications of inflammation in the arm. The attending physicians, however, feel confident of Mr. O'Connor's recovery.

FLEISHMAN HEARD FROM.—Yesterday The Constitution received a letter from J. N. Fleishman, the young Atlanta detective, who is charged with a defalcation in Cincinnati. The letter is dated on the train May 19th. Fleishman says he did not steal a thousand dollars from his employers. He swears vengeance against the men who started the "lie" about him.

Early in the morning he came into the city to attend to some business and about 11 o'clock started home. His death is supposed to have been caused by over exertion of the brain.

Mr. Candler was traveling through the country in a buggy, and when he reached Flint river, at Dorsey's mill, he found the stream up. He undertook to cross, however, but before getting half over found his buggy floating and his horse swimming. The stream was very rapid and the buggy began to float down. He managed to get out of the horse to go straight across. Mr. Candler, seeing that the horse could not stem the current, he grabbed the horse and cut him. He reached the shore and was safe. He and his wife reached Atlanta.

PROHIBITION PRATER.

HE SAYS THE PROHIBITIONISTS MUST COME TO HIS RESCUE.

He threatens to tell on a prominent prohibitionist who requested if they don't help him, he will tell on them. He says he has to say, "What he has to say."

Alf Prater, the pedestrian, was yesterday fined one hundred dollars and cost in the city court for assault and battery.

On the 30th day of November last, Prater and Bert Lovejoy, the Broad street saloonist, had a difficulty, which resulted in the arrest of both men.

The difficulty occurred a few days after the prohibition election, and created a considerable stir at the time.

Prater had worked hard on the dry side. He was at every day meeting, and was an usher at the Sam Jones tent where thousands assembled daily to hear speeches in favor of prohibition. Prater manipulated with his friends and was considered a good worker in the cause. He talked prohibition in the by ways and hedges, and when election day rolled round he pinned a half dozen blue badges on his coat and prepared for a hard day's work. The committee assigned Prater to a wagon and told him to put in every vote possible. This he did. He worked like his soul's salvation depended on it and all day long he kept things moving.

YELLED FOR THE DRY SIDE as loud as the next man, and was not behind in carrying voters to the polls. During the day he visited every precinct and carried a load every time. It was a bitter cold day, but the prohibitionist worker worked just the same and never appeared to be weary. When the ballots were counted and it was seen that the dry men had won the day, Prater's voice could be heard far above all others, and he was apparently the happiest man in the city. He joined the crowd who serenaded the prohibition leaders and took in the town with the boys.

Prater's happiness, however, came to a sudden halt. Four or five days after the election his business called him to W. J. McDonald's rooms over.

BERT LOVEJOY'S SALOON. He had just started up the stairway when Lovejoy met him and asked, "Where are you going?"

"Up stairs," was the reply.
 "No, you ain't."
 "Well, I am."

"I don't prohibitist can't go up into my building."
 "I have business."
 "Don't make any difference. You can't go up."

And from this the two men began to quarrel and finally came to blows, Prater getting the best of the difficulty. Both men were arrested and carried before the recorder. The case against Lovejoy was dismissed, but Prater was put under bond for his appearance at the court to answer a charge of assault and battery. The trial, as stated above, resulted in his conviction.

AFTER THE PROHIBITIONISTS. "I'll get 'em," said Prater to a Constitution man yesterday afternoon.
 "Get who?" asked the reporter.
 "Never mind; you will see."
 "But what do you mean by 'you'll get 'em'?"

"I mean that these fellows must help me out of this trouble."
 "Ah, ha!"
 "Money is what I want now. Ain't got but ten dollars to get it up in either."

"Think you can make the trip?"
 "If I don't some of these prohibitionists will wish they had assisted me."
 "What will you do if they refuse?"
 "I'll hit 'em."

"SQUEAL ON 'EM."
 "In what way?"
 "I'll tell you, I hope I may never live to beat Ford again if I don't give away some of these big bugs who voted twice."

"They surely didn't do that?"
 "Yes, they did, and they were men who stand high here, too."

"Who were they?"
 "I do not propose to tell unless they force me to, but if I do to squeal you will see some lively kicking among the prohibitionists. It will cause a good many of them to open their eyes."

"Do you mean what you say about this?"
 "Just as sure as the sunshine I'll do it."
 And the pedestrian walked off down the street whistling "You'll be an angel by-and-by."

WHAT A PROHIBITIONIST SAYS. "Prater says he's going to stick some of the prohibitionists if they don't help him out in paying his fine," said The Constitution man to a leading prohibitionist last night.

"He is?" asked the prohibitionist.
 "That's what he says."
 "How does he propose to do it?"
 "He says some of you voted twice."

"He must be bilious."
 "Don't know—only telling you what he says about it."

"Did he name any one who repeated?"
 "Not exactly."
 "No, nor he can't do it. This is just a dodge to raise money to pay his fine. I understand it. Guess he won't scare the prohibitionists very bad. While there may have been repeating both by the pro and anti, I don't think any one knew it or ever will."

"Then Prater won't get help from the prohibitionists?"
 "They had nothing to do with his fight with Lovejoy and of course he won't get any money from them. It is all boob."

A MILLION MEMBERS.

Right Worthy Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. of the World.
 The annual session of the right worthy grand lodge, I. O. G. T. of the world, will be held in Richmond, Va., next week.

Mr. J. G. Thrower, grand worthy secretary of the grand lodge of Good Templars, leaves this morning to attend the session. Speaking to him yesterday he said:

"The session promises to be a most interesting and important one."
 "What are the main questions to be considered?" asked the reporter.
 "There are several but I do not know exactly the nature of them so as to give them for publication. This convention is composed of representatives from grand lodges in every civilized country. Its ritual is printed in thirteen different languages."

"What is the membership?"
 "Nearly a million."
 "Where will the next session be held?"
 "I can't say, but the southern members will use every effort to bring it to Atlanta."

"Do you think you will succeed?"
 "Yes, I have very strong hopes. I think Atlanta could entertain the convention handsomely."

TWO BLOODY HEROES.

They Made a Flank Movement on the Comptroller General.

Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, Comptroller General Wright was sitting in his office at the capitol, engaged in the examination of his mail. Mr. Robert Irwin, one of the secretaries, was in the outer office looking over some old records.

A shuffling of feet in the hall announced the approach of visitors, but neither the comptroller general nor Mr. Irwin expected an invasion by a detachment from the army of Virginia.

At the door of the outer office the shuffling ceased.
 "Hello, general," exclaimed a battered specimen of humanity, hobbling into the office and grasping Mr. Irwin's hand, "me and my fellow soldier are in distress. We're busted."

Mr. Irwin was as much astonished by his sudden promotion as he was by the appearance of the battered soldier and his comrade and the announcement as to the reduced state of their finances.

"Excuse me," he said, "you have made a mistake. Captain Wright is in the inner office."

"Beg pardon, sir," said the battered soldier, "you looked as if you might be a general." The battered soldier and his comrade hobbled into the inner office and confronted the comptroller general.

They looked as if they had just escaped from a skirmish in a soldier's camp. Their clothes were in rags, and it was painfully apparent that neither was acquainted with the fact that water may be used for other purposes than drinking. One had a black eye and the other had a smashed nose. Both were under the influence of the ardent.

"Hello, general," they exclaimed in unison, surrounding the comptroller general; "we're veterans. We're bloody heroes of the lost cause. We're the left-hand men of old Bob Lee. We're busted."

"Well, my friends," said the comptroller general, "what can I do for you?"
 The two battered and badly "busted" soldiers lifted up their voices and wept.
 "We've been the happiest man in the city," they whined, "and we want a quarter apiece."

The comptroller general surrendered without firing a gun, handed out the quarters, and then gave thanks because the "bloody heroes" promptly retreated.

UNITED STATES COURT.

An Important Order Rendered—The Moonshiners.

In the case of the Central Trust company of New York vs. the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, in which case Henry Flank was appointed receiver, Judge McKay passed the following order yesterday:

"In the case of the Central Trust company of New York against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, in which case Henry Flank was appointed receiver of the road, that all applications and interventions pending in that cause for the payment of money, and wherein there has been no judgment by court, or report by the special master, be referred to the special master and by him examined into and reported to the court."

This order does not include such suits as are now pending in the United States circuit court against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad company or Henry Flank, receiver.

THE MOONSHINERS.
 Deputies Murphy and Scott yesterday returned from Murray county, bringing with them two moonshiners, Alex and Nim Kell. The men wanted the cases against them disposed of as soon as possible, and asked to be given a hearing. Judge McKay heard the cases, and the men were sent up for one month each. They appeared satisfied, and were carried to jail to serve out their sentences.

A DAMAGE SUIT.
 The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad company is sued for ten thousand dollars damages to property and person by John F. Morrison and W. H. Chapman, who were injured by being run into by an engine while crossing at Peters street in their buggy. The men claim that they were badly injured, and want five thousand dollars each.
